President's Message By Craig Rohleder

National Health Care Supply Chain Week is right around the corner, Oct 6-12, 2019. Please take the opportunity to recognize the work of all your associates who are employed in Healthcare Supply Chain. We are all encouraged to host some type of event in our hospitals that highlight what we do to take care of our patients. If your department or your hospital hosts an event for Healthcare Supply Chain week, please take pictures and send the information of the event to your KAHRMM board members, so you can be recognized and our chapter can receive recognition for the celebration. You can send the information to me, and I'll make sure that it's mentioned in the newsletter.

Let us know, so we can help spread the word.

KAHRMM News

Congratulations Brian Dolan!

For those who may not yet know, one of our own KAHRMM members, Brian Dolan, won a seat on the AHRMM Board this year. Many who know Brian realize he's a Healthcare Supply Chain professional of the highest caliber who constantly works for the continued improvement and advancement of our profession. He is a forward thinker, always looking for efficiencies and standardization of processes. There's no doubt Brian will represent all the membership well at the national level. Be sure to congratulate him, when you see him.

Learn from Others, They Will Learn from You By Randy Lott

We all face challenges. We all experience hardships, disappointments and losses.

Everything we go through teaches us something; we discover our strengths, identify our weaknesses, learn what we're made of, and find out who we can depend on.

No matter how we overcome adversity, the act of overcoming it teaches a lesson—a lesson that not only benefits us, but can also help others traveling the same road.

I recently saw and passed on the following message via social media: "One day you will tell your story of how you've overcome what you're going through now, and it will become part of someone else's survival guide."

I hope this encourages you like it has me, reminding you that one day you'll be able to look back on the challenges of today and tell your story of survival or even triumph. I also hope this reminds you to look to the stories of others and learn from them!

We all face challenges. But we are not alone in adversity—we almost always can look for and find the success stories of others who have faced similar things.

We don't have to—in fact it is impossible to—learn everything we need to know through personal experience. We don't have the time on this planet to learn everything we need to know through personal experience. We need and must learn from the experience and wisdom of others.

Learn from others... then pass on your own experience and wisdom too!

2019 AHRMM CQO Report on Clinical Integration

Keep up to date on the latest information on the CQO movement. The report highlighted below can be found on the AHRMM website. Check it out today at <http://ahrmm.org/>.

The CQO Report follows the evolution of the CQO Movement through the Affordable Care Act, Triple and Quadruple Aims, population health management, and the clinically integrated supply chain.

The report features six case studies from leading hospitals and health systems who are addressing some of field's most significant challenges: From growing mergers and acquisition to declining Medicare reimbursements, the report demonstrates why clinical and supply chain collaboration is critical to success.
