Investing in Your Workforce: Apprenticeships in Rural Health Care

Hospitals across Kansas are turning to apprenticeships as a powerful strategy to build career pathways, reduce reliance on contract labor and boost employee retention. To support this momentum, a new initiative will offer resources and guidance to strengthen existing apprenticeship programs--and help more facilities launch customized programs that meet their workforce needs.

Healthworks is proud to announce a two-year grant from the Patterson Family Foundation aimed at expanding health care apprenticeships in rural Kansas. With this support, Healthworks will collaborate with TalentGro to deliver technical assistance and hands-on guidance to hospitals ready to start or grow their apprenticeship efforts. The Kansas Health Care Apprenticeship Partnership aims to create 150 new health care apprenticeships in rural communities during the grant period.

Join us on Nov. 4 at 10:00 a.m. to explore:

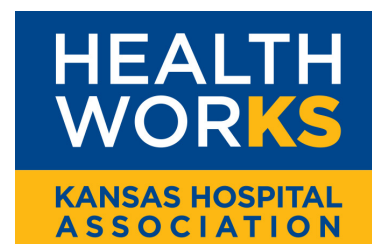

- What health care apprenticeships are and how they work;
- The benefits of “growing your own” through registered apprenticeships;
- How Healthworks can support hospitals in launching and managing programs; and
- Available funding opportunities to help bring these efforts to life.
