Internationally educated nurses offer a proven, long-term solution to hospital workforce stability, but gaining buy-in across your leadership team requires confidence in the process. Creating a successful international program, and ensuring a positive return on investment, starts with knowing the exact questions to ask, both regarding your internal operational readiness and when evaluating potential agency partners.

Join the Kansas Hospital Association for a Noon Briefing exploring how to build and sustain a highly successful international nursing program. A panel featuring clinical leaders from the Kansas Hospital Association, Salina Regional Health Center, and Interstaff will unpack the roadmap to success. They will discuss how to build confidence among all hospital stakeholders by proactively navigating financial, regulatory, and clinical considerations, turning potential logistical hurdles into a seamless onboarding experience.

Participants will learn what criteria to look for in an agency partner and hear firsthand perspectives on streamlining clinical orientation, structuring comprehensive relocation support, and building ongoing professional development pathways. Whether you are exploring international staffing for the first time or looking to strengthen an existing program, you will leave with actionable strategies to ensure a highly rewarding transition for both your hospital and your nurses.

Learning Objectives:

- Identify the critical questions hospital leaders must ask when developing an international nursing program and evaluating potential agency partners.
- Build leadership confidence by proactively addressing and demystifying financial, regulatory, and administrative requirements (e.g., immigration and licensure).
- Implement best practices for clinical preparedness, relocation support, and community assimilation to ensure a smooth transition and rapid time-to-productivity.
- Apply a unified communication framework and ongoing career coaching strategies to drive the long-term retention and success of internationally educated nurses.
